India's pioneering and largest textile machinery exhibition has invited nominations for the 2nd Grand Edition of India ITME Society Awards 2022, which is scheduled to be presented in Greater Noida on 8 December 2022.

In a press release, ITME Society said that these awards will set the tone for the start of the biggest textile engineering show, which will witness the presence of international and national delegates representing ambassadors, council members, various ministries, state ministers, textile and state commissioners and global investors.

The winners will be felicitated with cash award, trophy and certificate.

The 2nd edition of awards looks at recognising and felicitating people in the following five categories including awards for overall best performer in engineering industry presented in eight specific categories (ginning, spinning, weaving and weaving preparatory, processing and finishing, garmenting, printing, accessories for textiles and technical textiles).

There are awards for best innovative technology for pollution control and women leadership in textile & textile engineering. Other awards include award for Research Excellence and textile maestros.

S Hari Shankar, Chairman, India ITME Society, said "The society & self strongly believe that the young minds of today are the colourful future of our textiles; this is why, in addition to the dedicated award category for our innovators in 2022 edition, we have always introduced knowledge programmes for the learners. I am sure the success story of innovator recognised in our awards will attract more youths towards R&D in textiles."
