ColorJet Group, India's leading manufacturer of digital textile printing technologies, has been named the Official Technology Partner for Bharat Tex 2026, reinforcing its commitment to sustainable innovation and India's growing leadership in textile manufacturing technology.

Supported by the Ministry of Textiles and organised by the consortium of Textile Export Promotion Councils (EPCs), Bharat Tex brings together the entire textile value chain, including fibres, fabrics, apparel, home textiles, machinery and technical textiles.

At the exhibition, ColorJet showcased its indigenous digital textile printing technologies, highlighting India's engineering capabilities and sustainable manufacturing solutions for global markets.

Among the highlights was the FabJet Pro, India's only indigenous ultra-wide direct-to-fabric digital textile printer for the home furnishings segment. Designed for printing widths of up to 3.2 metres, the machine supports applications including curtains, upholstery, bedding and home décor while delivering industrial-scale productivity and high-quality output.

Speaking on the partnership, Madhu Sudan, Chairman, ColorJet, said Bharat Tex has become a significant platform for showcasing India's textile ambitions and fostering collaboration across the industry. He added that the company's focus remains on developing sustainable technologies that enhance the global competitiveness of Indian textile manufacturers.

ColorJet's portfolio spans pigment, reactive and disperse digital printing technologies, enabling manufacturers to respond to shorter fashion cycles, greater customisation demands and evolving sustainability requirements.

With more than 6,000 installations across over 50 countries, ColorJet continues to strengthen India's position as a global hub for sustainable textile manufacturing and digital printing innovation.
